Overview

Villa Gioli is a spectacular Tuscan villa situated within reach of the region's finest cities and medieval towns. Once a summer escape for Italy's most renowned Impressionists, the villa still provides a secluded oasis for those seeking a remarkable Italian escape. Built as a hunting lodge in the 1700's, Villa Gioli saw countless leading artists and thinkers stay as part of a summer getaway. Even today, the villa still maintains its impressive painter's atelier and panoramic loggia viewpoint for those wishing to gain some inspiration from the beautiful Tuscan countryside. Of course, the villa has been meticulously restored to contemporary standards, ensuring that guests can enjoy the charms of Old Italy with modern convenience.

Guests enter via the ground floor, where there are numerous communal spaces to enjoy. A study provides a peaceful haven for those wishing to read or work, while the two living rooms ensure that guests can enjoy comfortable evenings in, surrounded by heirloom antiques and beautiful decorations. A separate dining room provides a formal setting for meal times, and the nearby kitchen is well-equipped for your culinary needs.

Upstairs, the villa provides six airy and elegant bedrooms, each offering lovely views of the grounds. There is also an additional living room for your comfort. Perhaps the villa's piece de resistance, however, is the top floor painter's atelier and panoramic loggia, boasting wraparound views across the Tuscan landscape. Just outside, guests can discover the villa's welcoming fenced pool and terrace, surrounded by enchanting mature gardens.
