Overview

The villa Lataliana means ‘Place of Tall Trees’ and on arrival at the villa it’s easy to understand why. From the towering 30-year-old baobab ‘upside down tree’ in the garden of one of the bedrooms to the spectacular flame trees that drop their scarlet petals into one of the open-air bathrooms, Villa Lataliana is bounded by some of the most beautiful trees in the district. Even the twisted door handles are fashioned from namesake liana vines.

The villa comprises four clusters of single-storey buildings linked by covered walkways, terraces, ornamental ponds and secret gardens, offering private spaces that guests can escape to, or social areas for dining, relaxing and recreation. Characterised by white pillars, ironwood shingle roofs, sliding glass doors with teakwood frames, and a swimming pool that meanders through the centre of the flat velvety lawn, Lataliana oozes sophistication and contemporary charm harmonised with artistic flair, a touch of local history and more than a nod to Balinese Hindu culture. The villa’s sophistication spills across into the superb gourmet cuisine prepared and cooked by three excellent chefs.

As a 7 bedroom villa estate the LataLiana consists of two private and unique areas. One of the villa containing a free flowing 25m private swimming pool, georgeus 5 bedrooms with 3 super king size bed and 2 king size bed convertible to twin completely with ensuite bathroom in each bedroom.
