Overview

An elegant residence just minutes from the popular former fishing village, Villa Aralia is a striking example of carefully considered architecture, with a range of added recreational facilities that make it ideal for a larger family.

This six-bedroom retreat is surrounded by luscious green hills and scenery, and is designed with a thoughtful neo-classical interior, including French wall panels and traditional wood writing desk and chairs to create a grand European look. Marble, stone and wood are used throughout to accentuate the traditional luxury of the villa, yet they also contrast with some rather modern fixtures and fittings, such as the ultramodern looking red kitchen, and the bathroom fittings which have an equally contemporary look.

The bedrooms are well appointed and are spacious, with large windows from which to view the surrounding landscape. A separate guest house with its own bedroom, bathroom, living area and kitchenette, offers some separate privacy for those who may need their own space independently from the rest of the main residence, and there is a garden level relaxation zone complete with sauna and that is a welcome soothing addition for spa-lovers. The pool area runs the entire length of the residence in perfect rectangular form, with ample sun loungers to relax and enjoy the Greek sunshine from. If you feel particularly active, why not take advantage of the tennis court onsite?

Villa Aralia also comes with a complimentary airport transfer service upon arrival at the airport, which is included in the price, and you can easily walk into Gouvia for its many bars and restaurant options.
